The Senste Committees.

The democratic caucus committee negaged in reorganizing the senste committees and assembled again this afternoon. They have partly completed their task. The two chief objects of the convention were the chairmanning the sense of the convention of the convention were the chairmanning the convention of the convent objects of the convention were the chairmanship of the committees on finance and appropriations, the principal committees of the senate. The ranking democrats of those committees were Vorhees and Cockrell. Tradition and precedent demanded that they be made chairman of their respective committees. There has been some talk that tradition and precedent would be abandoned in these cases. Mr. Vilas was said to aspire to be chairman of finance, basing his ambition on his claim of being President Cleveland's personal representative on the floor of the senate. Mr. Gorman was said to want the chairmanship man was said to want the chairmanship of appropriations. Tradition and precedent carried the day. Mr. Voorhees was decided upon as chairman of finance and Mr. Cockrell of appropriations. Mr. Vilas has not even been assigned to membership on the finance committee. The make-up of the committee is regarded as a black for Mr. Cleveland as it is decidedly pro-silver. The anti-silver men will be in a mi-nority and will be mostly republicans, though one silver republican, Jones, of Ne-vada, will undoubtedly remain on the com-mittee. Mr. Gorman will be chairman of the pointing committee of which be been the printing committee of which he has been for some years the only democratic member. This committee, though an impor-tant one, consists of but three members, two majority and one minority. Its value lies chiefly in its intimate re-lation with the government print-ing office, an immens and independent ing office, an immense and independent bureau entirely outside the civil service laws. The members of the printing committee revel in patronage galore. Senator Hill wanted the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee, of which he is now the junior member. He got the chairmanship of immigration, not an important committee, and he is not placed on any important committee. If this is an intentional snub of Hill it evidently was not done with any special view of carrying favor with President Cleveland, for his particular friends—Vilas and White, of Louisiana—are not placed on any impor-tant committees, either. In fact, the leav-ing of these two off of finance, when it is known that they more than any other democrats in the senate, reflect Mr. Cleveland's personal views about gold and silver and finance generally, is recognized as serving notice on the president that the senate cannot be counted on merely to register his will in these matters. One of the most significant selections of the caucus committee is Mr. Brice for chairman of the committee on pacific railroads He has not been a member or that mittee and his assignment to the chairman-ship must have been on the theory that he possesses particular fitness for this particupossesses particular fitness for this particupossesses particular fitness for this particupossesses particular fitness for this particuposes. any other man now in the senate. Anti-Gray Men are Mad. The appointment of Governor Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana, as minister to Mexico today has stirred up a little hornet's nest. Governor Gray was given this appointment in place of the cabinet portfolio which Mr. Whitney promised him at Chicago, but which Mr. Cleveland afterward declined to give. Governor Gray was satisfied, but the Indian element which fought him and were for Mr. Cleveland at the Chicago convention, are mad. Just as the nomination left the white house this morning a party of Indianians headed by John G. Shanklin called to protest against the appointment. Mr. Shanklin, who is president of the In-dianapolis Democratic Club, told Mr. Cleveland that the appointment of Governor Gray would cause great dissatisfaction among the genuine democrats of Indiana. But the protest was too late, and perhaps would have done no good had it been ear-

The fight for the secretaryship of the senate is between Colonel L. Q. Washington, of Virginia, and ex-Congressman Cox, of North Carolina. Colonel Washington stands well with the senators, having been the caucus nominee for the place some years ago when the democrats thought they were going to reorganize the senate but didn't. There would be little doubt of his success but for a letter he published last year in The Cincinnati Enquirer price to the Chicago convention, scoring Mr. Cleveland for inviting Frederick Douglass Cleveland for inviting Frederick Douglass to the white house, asserting that because of this no southern delegate could vote for Mr. Cleveland and return home and look his wife in the face. This was published in pamphlet form and circulated in the south as an anti-Cleveland document. It is now being used against him and some of the senators fear that to elect. Washington would be regarded as a personal insult to him.

He Is the Headsman.

The appointment of Robert A. Maxwell, of New York, as third assistant postmaster general or headsman of the postoffice department, today means that the Cleveland wing of the New York democracy is not going to allow the Hill wing to have any of the postoffices. Mr. Maxwell was one of the leading spirits in the anti-snapper convention. He has charge of the appointment of all the postmasters in the United States. This is the position Mr. Stevenson formerly occupied. He Is the Headsman.

Robert A. MaxWell is a citizen of Batavia, N. Y., and a man of means, having amassed considerable money as a maltster, from which business he retired some years ago. For twenty years he has been prominent in the politics of New York, and was recognized as a democrat of the old school. Mr. Maxwell was one of the leading spirits in the auti-snapper convention, and has long been a warm personal friend of Mr. Cleveland and Postmaster General Bissell. About a year ago Mr. Maxwell was removed from the office of the state insurance commission by Governor Flower, and at the time it was charged that his removal was due to Mr. Maxwell's friendshin for Mr. Cleveland. The post he will fill will be similar to that formerly occupied by Vice President Stevenson, and now to be vacated by E. G. Rathbone, of Ohio.

The senate, which Vice President Stevenson calls to order these days at noon, is a very different body from which Vice President Morton adjourned last Saturday. ident Morton adjourned last Saturday. The adjourned senate was a republican majority, the new one has a democratic majority. The terms of twenty-nine senators expired last Saturday at neon. The oath of office was administered by Vice President Stevenson to twenty-five senators, concerning whose seat there is no doubt, one senator in this category, Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, being absent. He also administered the oath to Senator Martin, conIT CAUSED SURPRISE

Washington, March 9 .- President Cleveland's first executive communication to the senate of the United States came this afternoon and proved to be a surprise not only to the republicans, but to many democrats as well. Mr. Cleveland withdrew the treaty with Hawaii, which was sent to the senate a few weeks ago by President Harrison. The message was short and to the point, the president simply requesting the senate to transmit to the executive the proposed treaty with Hawaii. The message was received without comment on the floor of the senate, although the republicans were prone to criticise the proceeding with considerable emphasis among themselves. Republican senators regard this ac-tion of the president as in line with the course pursued by Mr. Cleveland in with-drawing the Nicaragua treaty sent to the senate by President Arthur in the closing days of his administration. Democratic senators are divided in their views, some taking the ground that it shows Mr. Cleveland to be against annexation or American domination of any soil in the Ha-waiian islands, while others hold that he will send in another treaty more to his

It is understood that the reason for the withdrawal of the treaty by President Cleveland is because he is opposed to the treaty in the present form. Whether or not he will favor the making of another treaty, and whether it will be an annexation treaty or not, cannot be said on authority at this time, but a gentleman who has talked with the president on the subject said this after-noon that another treaty would be made. time, but a gentleman who has talked with the president on the subject said this after-noon that another treaty would be made. Will Talk with Admiral Brown Rear Admiral George Brown, who returned a few months ago from a three years' cruise in the Pacific, has been ordered to remain in Washington for consultation with the secretary of the navy and secretary of state respecting Hawaiian affairs. Nearly a year of the admiral's cruise was spent in the Hawaiian islands, and he is thoroughly familiar, not only with the condition of affairs there, but with the sentiments of the native and foreign born in ments of the native and foreign born in-habitants. Telegrams received today from Honolula, via. San Francisco, by the Hawalian annexation commissioners now in Washington indicate that the state of affairs in that country remains in statu quo. Matters are quiet and a general feeling of satisfaction prevails with the progress of affairs in Washington as they existed when the telegrams were written. the progress of affairs in Washington as they existed when the telegrams were written. The withdrawal from the senate of the annexation treaty by President Cleveland today is not believed by the commissioners to indicate that he intends to crush it by that means, as the commissioners say they understand the executive is in clined to favor the general proposition to annex the sland. They have as yet received no intimation from the officers of the new administration as to this course that will be pursued in the matter, nor laye they been in receipt of any communication from the secretary of state expressing a desire for further consultation regarding it.

NOTICE TO OFFICE SEEKERS.

Business Men Not Wanted as Postmasters Old Office Holders Must Stand Back. Washington, March 9.—Postmaster General Bissell is accredited with the announce ment that no local business men need apply for postoffices under his administration. He objects to commissioning local business men as postmasters, for reason that the actual duties are performed by irresponsible, and often incompetent clerks and substitutes. A postmaster under Mr. Bissell must promise to devote his entire time to the work, and personally keep strict office hours.

Representative Springer, of Illinois, who was one of the president's callers today, asked him if the rule of not appointing men who had held office under him four men who had beld office under him four men who had beld office under him four men was to prevail as reported. The More Men Will Be Appointed. men who had held office under him four years ago was to prevail as reported. The president replied in the affirmative, and when asked if the rule was inflexible, Mr. Cleveland responded that it would be so substantially. There might be exceptional and extraordinary circumstances which might cause some departures from it, but he could not call to mind many possibilities to justify a change from the policy decided upon. Mr. Springer asked if the rule was also to apply to the fourth-class postoffices. Mr. Cleveland's response was that he had not thought about that, but he gave a decided impression that it would prevail to as great an extent as possible with these small postmasterships.

HILL VISITS THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, March 9.—The one great feature of interest in political circles to-day is the visit of Senator David B. Hill to his greatest political rival, President Cleveland land Tuesday. That his visit is more than a perfunctory call is attested by the length of the interview. It lasted twenty minutes and during that time Mr. Cleveland received no cards from the waiting politicians in the cabinet room.

He Was Expected.

Mr. Hill came early. The great flood of office seekers had not begun to flow into the white house when he arrived. He passed rapidly through the hallway in the public part of the mansion into the room of Private Secretary Thurber, who evidently had been posted, for he ushered Mr. Hill into the adjoining executive office without a moment's delay.

When Mr. Hill entered the president's room word was sent to Doorkeeper Loeffer that Mr. Cleveland was very busily engaged and could not see any visitors for the time. As a consequence arriving delegations soon filled the cabinet room, and by the time Mr. Hill left the white house there were more men than seats in the apartment. He Was Expe

The President and Senator Hill.

Senator David B. Hill was the first caller at the white house this morning. He had a twenty minutes private interview with Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Hill wanted to know just what recognition he would receive in the distribution of the New York offices. Mr. Cleveland told him that he intended to recognize him just as he would the senators from all other states, that he would consult with him in the New York appointments, and he thought they would have no difficulty in agreeing. No specific offices were discussed and the interview was not unusual. The two were polite and courteous but not exactly chummy. The President and Senator Hill. not exactly chummy.

THE DAY IN THE EENATE. Discussion of the Question As to Whet

Discussion of the Question As to Whether Legislation can be Enacted.

Washington, March 9.—Immediately after the reading of Monday's journal in the senate, the credentials of W. Lee Mantle, appointed by the governor of Montana as senator from that state, in place of Mr. Saunders, were presented by Mr. Teller and read. Mr. Vance asked Mr. Teller what was proposed to be done with those credentials.

what was proposed to be done with those credentials.

Mr. Teller replied that he wished the credentials laid on the table to be referred to the committee on privileges and elections, when that committee shall have been formed. He did not propose to ask the senate to take action on them now, as he understood there were several other credentials of a like character to be passed upon involving a question of law which would have to be decided.

Mr. Vance—That is satisfactory to this house.

The credentials were therefore laid on the table. On motion of Mr. Gray it was ordered

On motion of Mr. Gray it was ordered that when the senate adjourned today, it be to meet Monday next.

Mr. Mitchell introduced a joint resolution the election of United States senators by the votes of qualified electors of a state.

Mr. Manderson asked that the resolution be allowed to lie on the table without any order as to reference to a committee, until the question should be determined whether at an extraordinary session which was for executive purposes, any attempt would be made to perform legislative business.

Mr. Mitchell said that he was willing to have that equirse taken.

made to perform legislative business.

Mr. Mitchell said that he was willing to have that course taken.

Pending the discussion of the question of receiving bills or joint resolutions requiring the action of both bouses, at a session like the present one of the senate, Mr. Dolph offered another with a wished to have received if the others should be. It was read. It was one calling upon the president of the United States to take such measures as he may deem necessary to consummate an agreement between the governments of Spain and the United States for the relief of Antony Moro, a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Then Mr. Manderson offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that at this extraordinary session business transacted should be confined to executive matters and matters requiring the action of the senate only.

matters and matters required the senate only.

Cockrell objected to the immediate consideration of the resolution, and it was ordered printed and to lie over.

Mr. Hale offered a mubstitute for Mr. Manderson's resolution declaring that "no legislative business shall be received or legislative business shall be received.

legislative business shall be received or entertained at 'the present session of the senate." He subsequently notified it by inserting the words "except treaties." Finally, the whole matter went over until the next meeting of the senate.

After some remarks by Mr. Call on the subject of his resolution as to public lands in Florida, the senate proceeded to executive business and at 1 o'clock adjourned until noon on Monday next. GOLD FOR SILVER.

It Is Probable That the Large Exportation of Gold Will Hold Up for Awhile. of Gold Will Hold Up for Awhile.

Washington, March 9.—The treasury today received gold at several points. In New York the gain made in gold was $100,000, while at New Orleans it received $20,000 in gold in exchange for a like amount in silver certificates, No intimation has yet been received that any gold will be exported on Saturday from New York, and at the present rate of exchange it is not thought that any will be taken out of the country. The treasury has now more than not thought that any will be taken out of the country. The treasury has now more than three million dollars in free gold, and, in the usual condition of trade, this is likely to be increased rather than diminished.

It is quite plainly intimated in the treasury department today that as between the issue of bonds and the use of a portion of the $100,000,000 gold reserve if necessary to maintain the parity of gold and silver, Secretary Carlisle will resort to the latter plan, but that he does not anticipate that the necessity will arise to do so.

Washington, Pa., March 9.—Colonel Streator, of the Tenth regiment National Guard of Pennsylvania, arrived home today from Washington. In an interview he stated that he was not alarmed in regard to the charges made against him. He'ris preparing charges of insubordination against Captain Brazier and others of the State Fencibles, which will be forwarded to General Snowden. He also said that the statement made in regard to North Carolina troops offering to help "clean out" the Tenth regiment must be incorrect, as one of the captains of the Carolina troops witnessed the whole affair and pledged his commands to assist the Tenth regiment in case a fight occurred.

A Message from the Governor.

Nashville, Tenn., March 9.—(Special.)—
Hon Julius A. Trousdale, newly elected speaker of the house, was sworn in this morning by Chief Justice Lurton.

A message was received from Governor Turney, recommending the separation of the office of adjutant general from that of private secretary to the governor, on the grounds that it is almost impossible for one man to perform the duties of both under any conditions. He says it is important that the great expense now attending the protection of property and the anforcement of the law at certain mining points be removed or reduced as soon as possible, and that this may safely be recommended at an early day. EXCITEMENT IN THE COURTROOM

His Accomplices Denounce Him as a Liar, But He Says He Is Telling Nothing But the Truth-Other News.

Paris, March 9.-Interest in the Panam trial is increasing, and the greater curiosity is shown as to the coming developments. It is reported that the frankness with which Charles de Lesseps told his story has caused surprise and some con-sternation in certain high circles, and that considerable anxiety has been felt in some quarters as to the subsequent testimony. Approaches to the palias de justice, as well as to the courtroom were thronged this morning, and there was a buzz of gossip among the spectators which lasted until the presiding judge, Dea Jardins, took his seat. Then silence was demanded in more than the usually imperative manner, and the audience became quiet, as if apprehen-sive that the courtroom might be cleared. Marius Fontaine was the first witness. He was a member of the board of management of the Panama Canal Company at the time the transactions with Baihut oc-curred. He described the visit of Blondin, who assured the board that Baihut introduce a bill anthorizing the lottery bonds if the Panama Canal Company would make a substantial pecuniary sacrifice, and that the money would be used to procure publicity for the scheme. Fontaine admitted that acting under the direction of Charles de Lesseps he visited Blondin. He found Baihut there. Baihut said the money in question would be used in proporting the in question would be used in promoting the

This closed the interrogation of Fontaine for the time being and now followed the great sensation of the day. Baihut was called upon to answer interrogatories, the presiding judge addressing the question to the accused. Baihut showed a disposition at first to throw the blame upon Blondin, who had acted as the go-between in the negotiations. Haihut said:

"I acted at the Instigation of Blondin, to whom I gave 7500 francs. I have wished to restore the maney I received, but I feared thereby to accuse myself."

Up to this moment Baihut had spoken clearly and with apparent self-control. Now he broke down and with a pitiful expression of sorrow and despair he exclaimed in a broken voice:

"I acknowledge having been led astray. I am guilty. My words do not express the grief and repentance I feel. I do not yet understand how I could have fallen so low. I ask pardon of my country, whose sood name I have perhaps sullied."

As soon as Baihut regained his self-control he said:

"I submit, in advance, to any sentence which the court may pass upon me."

Blondin was questioned by the presiding judge as to how he came which the court may pass upon me."

Blondin was questioned by the presiding judge as to how he came to act as intermediary between the Panama company and Baihut's demand for money. He acknowledged that he had received 7,500 francs for his services in arranging matters between the minister and directors. He had arranged the meeting between Baihut and Charles de Lesseps in the belief that it would be for the best interests of the canal company. He admitted that he had settled matters connected with the payment of the bribs. Charles de Lesseps had handed Baihut 250,000 francs at Baihut's house and 125,000 more in the lobby of the senate. Baihut, recalled for cross-examination by the counsel for the Panama creditors, stated again that Blondin had obtained a commission on the transaction between him and De Lesseps.

In the midst of Baihut's statement Fontaine sprang to his feet and shouted.

"That statement is the basest falsehood. The witness has not spoken a word of truth."

Turning upon his accusers, Baihut said

Turning upon his accusers, Baihut said slowly:
"I affirm that what I have said is the exact truth and nothing but the truth."

GERMANS DEFEAT THE NATIVES.

A Battle in Africa in Which the Germa Were Victorious.

Berlin, March 9.—Advices from east Africa state that the German troops have won an important victory over the hostile natives of Uniangwira. The German force was composed of white soldiers and native levies. The hostile natives made a stubborn resistance, but were defeated, after a severe conflict, with heavy loss. The German loss includes a German sergeant named Fittel, and ten of the native soldiers were killed and Lieutenant Bothmer wounded. The defeat has carried general consternation among the hostile natives, and it is believed will go far towards suppressing resistance to German authority.

Evicted Tenants' Commission Reports.
London, March 9.—The evicted tenants' commission, Sir James Mathew chairman, has presented its report to parliament. The commission was appointed last October and has been at work since November the 8th. Its purpose was "to inquire into and to ascernin what just means should be adopted to bring about settlements to evicted tenants in Ireland. The commissioner or special commissioner be appointed to settle the disputes. When arbitration fails the commissioner should determine reasonable terms on which a tenant may purchase a holding and liquidate arrears of rent. A tenant should be able to stock his holding by means of a losin upon the security of rates, upon application to the board of guardians. Where a planter had a substantial interest in a holding the commissioner should be impracticable, the commissioner should by a similar holding and sell it under the land purchase act to the evicted tenant.

The two latter plants are not included in today's sale and until they are sold the amount of the mortgage to which the Al-ahama plants are subject cannot be deter-mined. The old company has a two years right of redemption, but this is not likely to cut any figure in the sale of today. Mr. Ristine, the purchasing agent, says he hopes to have the plants running in a short time. The one here employed 1,000 men up to the time it shut down two years ago.

LAVELLE'S LAST LEASE ON LIFE.

The Cereer of a Distinguished Crimi Is Johnson a "Jack the Bipper" Crimes and Casuaities of a Day.

Rome, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Sherman Arp, the young negro man who is to be hung at Centre, Ala., tomorrow at 1 o'clock, has made the most remarkable sale of his body over known. He sold it by the pound. Several days ago he offered his body for sale to the doctors of Centre. He told them he would sell his body to the highest bidder for cash and that he desired to be weighed like a hog and sold by the pound. He did not want any guess work; he wanted the highest price the market would afford and he wanted full pay for every pound.

Several doctors made bids. One bid 6 cents per pound spot cash. Another raised the bid to 7 1.2 cents. It then went to 7 3-4 cents. Dr. Will Darnell raised the bid to 8 cents per pound and the trade was closed. Arp went on a pair of scales and was weighed. He tipped the beam at 156 pounds. Dr. Darnell then figured up the amount and paid over to Arp $12.48 in cash and Arp gave the doctor an order for his bid.

amount and paid over to Arp $12.48 in cash and Arp gave the doctor an order for his body. Arp then proceeded to blow the money for good things to eat and drink and while it lasted he had a rousing big time. He will be hung for the murder of old man Hogue, an old and decrepit farmer near Centre, more than a year ago. He struck the old man on the head with an ax and laid open his head.

Mother and children Drowned.

Today, about noon Mrs. Edgar Woods and four children attempted to cross Cedar creek, four miles from Cave Springs, and were drowned. The creek was greatly swollen from recent rains, and the wagon which was driven by a negre boy was turned over and drifted down stream several yards. Late this afternoon two bodies were found a mile and a half from the ford. Tonight a large crowd are looking for the other two bodies. The team was drowned, but the near officer made his escape by swimming to land.

LAVELLE'S LAST LEASE

On Life Has Expired and Soon He Will Expire in Turn. Charleston, S. C., March 9.—(Special.)—Preparations have been completed for the hanging of Napoleon Lavelle, a murderer, who has four times been sentenced escaped each time by the success of niconneel in fuggling with the law on technicalities, one of which technicalities was in the nature of stealing a portion of the records of the court.

Lavelle, on February 17, 1890, called at the residence where his wife was living with her brother, and shot her dead. He then shot her uncle, B. Feldman, who was attracted to the scene by the pistol shots.

then snot her uncie, B. Feidman, who was attracted to the scene by the pistol shots. Feldman recovered. At his trial, the defense was that he went to the house and called his wife out with the intention of called his wife out with the intention of committing suicide in her presence, and that his wife, in attempting to take the pistol away from him, received the bullet in her neck. In was proven, however, thas he shot her, and in his statement before the coroner's jury he made no reference in his intention to commit suicide.

Lavelle is a northern man, and has several grown children by a former marriage in New York. His case is considered one of the most remarkable instances of the abuse

New York. His case is considered one of the most remarkable instances of the abuse of technicalities in the administration of the law in this state on record, and has excited public opinion so much that the suggestion has been made in the newspapers of the state that the criminal be let off and his lawyer be hanged in his place. It required a special session of the state supreme court, and an amendment of the rules to squelch the last "appeal."

There is no chance of the execution being delayed now unless the governor interferes. Should it take place, it will be the first instance of a white criminal being executed in this city for over thirty years. The number of white murderers that have escaped the law in that time must be considerable over one hundred.

hn Schutte Accused of Having One Wife in Baltimore and Another in Louisville.

A short while ago Father Louis Miller, of St. Anthony's church, received a letter from Father Rusch, of Baltimore, asking him to Investigate a report that had reached Baltimore to the effect that Schutte had married again and was living in this city. Father Miller, at once notified the detectives, who communicated with Mrs. Schutte in Baltimore and began work on the case. An examination of the records at St. Anthony's church showed that John Schutte and Miss Anna Margaret Mulwengler had been married at the church in May. 1890. The detectives coon located their man and arrested him. The second wife was only eighteen years old when he married her, and two small children are the result of the marriage, the youngest child being only five months old.

When told upon what charge Schutte had been arrested his young wife was much affected and begged the detectives not to take her husband away. The man seemed in no way affected, and without a parting word to the wife and children accompanied the detectives to the station. He refused to talk about his trouble and would neither admit nor deny his guilt, but sat sullenly in his cell.

He is well dressed, however, and seems to have a fair education. The detectives say they expect to work up another case against him. Mrs. Schutte No. 1, the officers say, has expressed a willingness to come here to the trial and prosecute her erring spouse.

The First Boring for It Near Florence

Florence, Ala., March 9.—(Special.)—On the Stutts farm, fourteen miles northeast of Florence, the first experimental boring for oil and natural gas is now being made with every prospect of striking it rich. Expert oil men have gone over the ground carefully and have found promising indications of oil and gas.

The Tennessee and Alabama Company, an organization composed of wealthy Nashville parties and capitalized at $10,000, own the gas and oil right to 20,000 acres of land in that part of the county and they have obligated themselves to wore four wells in that section, 1,500 feet deep, or until oil or gas is found in paying quantities. All of the machinery has arrived and work was commenced on the first well yesterday morning. Mr. I. A. Ofcutt, a practical oil man from Bradford, Pa., its supervising the work and he is very enthusiastic over the prospect. The Tennessee and Alabama company has established an ottice in Florence with Thurston H. Allen, of this city, as resident agent and manager. The people of this city and county are intensely interested in the experiment and all feel sure of its successful termination.

Broker Parker's Suit Against "De White for False Imprisonment on Trial.

New York, March 9.—(Special.)—Broker Alfred M. Parker's suit against S. V., White for damages for false arrest and imprisonment came up for trial in the supreme court. Mr. White had Parker arrested in October, 1890, when he heard that Parker hal offered to bet on October 8th in the office of Walker & Co., that Delaware, Lackawanna and Western stock would fall off awanna and Western stock would fall off 20 per cent within sixty days, and that S. V. White would fall within the same time. The report soon began to be circulated in Wall street and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western stock was badly affected by it. "Deacon" White had Parker arrested and he was held in the Tombs for four days under $2,500 bail. Parker testified to these facts. He admitted that he had offered to bet $50 to $100 on his predictions quoted Dahlonega, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—The vast interest of the Dahlonega Company, imited, of London, Eng., was sold here Tuesday at receiver's sale to the highest bidder. It was bid off by Hon. F. W. Hall for the sum of $12,000. This company had large interests here and became involved, while preparing their various mines for development, and went into the hands of a receiver before a day's work was done on their various mines with one exception, the Singleton property, which Captain John W. Weaver, the receiver, has worked, and made pay handsomely ever since he took charge of the same some two years ago. It is thought now that those interests which have lain dormant in the hands of the law for the past two years will all be developed and will pay handsome profits.

Considerable inferest was aroused by the announcement that Salvini would be seen in the double roles of Ruy Blas and Don Caesar, and that he realized the two widely contrasted characters in an efficient manner would be a mild report of his success tonight. In depicting the "melancholy, romantic and ambitious valet, Ruy Blas, he displayed a power of repression that proved as eloquent in its poetic pathos and as forcible as the enthusiasm characteristic of his D'Artagnan. THE NAMES SENT IN.

cerning whose right to a seat Mr. Hoar in-timated there might be some doubt, but who had, he admitted, a prima facie title. Mr. Martin was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Plumb, which ex-pired March 3, 1895. The three senators whose terms expired last Saturday and for whose seat no one presented credentials, are Allen, republican, of Washington, War-ren, republican, of Wyoming and Sanders, republican, of Montana. In Wyoming the legislature adjourned without electing a senator and the governor appointed Mr. senator and the governor appointed Mr. Beckwith, a democrat. In Montana the legislature also failed to elect and the governor appointed Mr. Mantle, a republican. Neither of them has presented his creden-tials. It is expected that when they do present their credentials from their governor, a very interesting contest as to the constitutional right of the governor to appoint where the legislature has had an opprecedents of the senate are against the centlemen who will claim the seats from Wyoming and Montana by virtue of ap-pointment of the governors of those states Of the twenty-nine senators whose terms expired, a number succeeded themselves. They are Aldrich, of Rhode Island; Davis of Minnesota: Hale, of Maine; Hawley, Connecticut; Proctor, of Vermont; Quay, of Pennsylvania; Sherman, of Ohio; Stewart, of Nevada; and Stockbridge, of Michigan, republicans; and Bate, of Tennessee; Cockrell, of Missouri; Daniel, of Virginia; Faulk ner, of West Virginia; George, of Missis sippi; Gorman, of Maryland; Gray, of Del aware; Mills, of Texas; Pasco, of Florida; and Turpie, of Indiana, democrats.

The new democratic senators are Mitchell of Wisconsin, who succeeded Sawyer; Mur phy, of New York, who succeeded Hiscock Roach, of North Dakota, who succeeded Casey; Smith, of New Jersey, who suc ceeded Blodgett, and White, of California who succeeded Felton. Four of these suc ceeded republicans, one a democrat, this latter being in New Jersey. One populist, Allen, of Nebraska, was elected in place of a republican, Paddock.

There is but one new face on the republican side, Lodge, of Massachusetts, and he, of course, succeeded a republican, Dawes. With three vacancies in the senate it will number eighty-five, a full senate consisting of eighty-eight members. Of these eighty-five, the democrats have forty-four with Martin and forty-three without him. Of the other forty-one senators, thirty-eight are republicans and three, Allen, of Nebraska; Peffer, of Kansas; and Kyle, of South Dakota, are populists. These latter will act with the democrats in organizing the senate, and one of them, Kyle, will, it is thought, go into the democratic caucus. There is absolutely no danger of the senate's falling into the hands of the republicans during Mr. Cleveland's admin Congressman Amos Cummings, of New York, accompanied by a party of his friends, will leave in a few days on a fishing trip to Florida. Mr. Cummings is a great fisherman as well as a great newsaper man and statesman. He will remain in Florida about a month. Among the others who will accompany him is Colonel Thomas J. Murray, better known as "Terrapin who presides over the house restanrant. Mr. Murray is said to be the best restauranter in America. It is needless to say that the fish of Florida had best make party drop their lines.

And Why Not? The extremely bad weather of the 4th and the great amount of sickness which followed it is giving rise to much talk on the subject of changing the date of the inauguration. Already a resolution has been introduced in the senate providing for the probable that the new congress when it meets will take some action in regard this matter. March is the worst month of the year in Washington. Four years ago, when Mr. Harrison was inaugurated, it was a cold, rainy day, which caused the death of many of the participants in the inau-gural ceremonies. It was, however, not such a bad day as last Saturday. Many deaths have already occurred from exposure on last Saturday and there are dozens of people now ill from the effects of the weather on

An amendment to the constitution will be necessary to change the date of the inauguration, but it is probable that such an amendment can be adopted without any decided opposition.

Why the Races Don't Attract. There has been races here at the Ivy City track for the past ien days, but up to date the races have proved a financial failure. It is true that Washington is crowded with office seekers and statesmen, but the people here are so anxious for offices that they do not even have time to go to the races. Again many of them are afraid that attendance upon the race course night injure their chances of appointment. The office-seekers are watching each other and each one is using every possible argument to prevent his opponent getting ahead

The Georgia boys are scrambling for office as they have never scrambled before. The lobby of the Metropolitan hotel presents the appearance of the Kimball house lobby about the time of the meeting of a new legislature and the rooms of the congressmen are filled from morning until night by scores of people after offices. It is sad to think that the great majority of them will me disappointed.

Letter Carriers Claim This Sum for Overtim Under the Eight Hour Law.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—(Special.)—The letter carriers of Louisville and many other cities in the United States are anxiously awaiting a decision of the United States supreme court. Ever since Jim Corbett and Charle Mitchell signed articles to fight for $10, 000 a side the sporting world has been wondering where these great pugliste would meet to decide the greatest fighting event ever known in ring his ry. It is now practically decided that the big fight will take place in this city. A syndicate of moneyed sporting men headed by C. J. Hamlin, the well-known turfite, and Barney Fossett, the millionaire turf exchange proprietor and backer of Jim Daly, ha been organized with a subscribed capital of over $75,000, and this amount has been bid for the great battle. Said Mr. Hamlin "The arrangements, with the exception of a few minor details, have been completed. Both men say they are willing to fight here. Sullivan Talks Again.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—John L. Sullivan was asked yesterday why he had shaken hands with Mitchell and why he sided with him. The ex-champion's statement was to the point. He said he was now friendly with Mitchell, because he had come across the ocean to make a fight with Corbett. He had shown that he meant business by giving up everything that Corbett asked. He had put up his $10,000 in a lump on the champion's demand, a thing that no other fighter had ever asked. All the way through he had acted a man and shown himself sincere in his desire to fight. It was for these reasons. Sullivan said, that he likes Mitchell. He thinks Corbett thought by insisting on the $10,000 being put up, Mitchell would be unable to get the necessary backing and, therefore, would be unable to fight. He thinks Corbett was bluffing and was called.

A Romantic Marriage. Richland, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—The quiet little town of Richland, Ga., will have a genuine surprise tomorrow when they read The Constitution, making public a marread The Constitution, making public a marriage that occurred here about a week ago.

About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, March 1st, Mr. Herin, agent at the Savannah, Amercus and Montgomery depot, met the Rev. Mr. Hannon, pastor of the Methodist church, on the street and requested him to go out to an old Baptist church about a half mile from town and perform a marriage caremony.

half mile from town and perform a marriage ceremony.

It was going to be a run-away match and everything was to be kept a profound secret. As soon as the minister found that to be the case he remonstrated with the young couple and offered to intercede in their behalf if they would postpone the marriage; but the license had been procured and everything was in readiness and they would not consent to a postponement. Finding the young people in that determined state of mind the minister promised to be at the appointed place by the appointed time.

A short while before sunset a young man and two maideus sat on the grass behind a delapidated gloomy old church budning that looked like a favored haunt for bats and owls. The western sky was radiant with the sunset's glow and a gentle z-phyr kissed the lips of the maidens fair and toyed with their flaxen tresses, but in that little group of three was no merriment. Their voices were muffled into a soft whisper as they alked of the marriage and its probable consequences.

were numed into a soft winsper as they talked of the marriage and its probable consequences.

Soon they were joined by the minister, and there was but one more lacking to complete the bridal party, but that was the bridegroom.

All anxiously waited for his arrival. Moments seemed to lengthen into bours, and the blushing bride began to grow nervous, but he soon made his appearance and the fittle party, composed of Rev. Mr. Hannon, Mr. J. R. Jackson, Miss Helen Glies and the bride and bridegroom entered the spacious, gloomy church. The church was so old that when the party entered it seemed to shake with rage and mutter a thousand disapprovals. Such were the surroundings that one almost felt that they were in the presence of the ghost of the departed. Undaunted by these gloomy appearances the young couple arranged themselves in the center of the great old church ready to take the soirm vows of matrimony. The bridegroom, a handsome young man about twenty-four vears of age, was dressed in a neat black suit; the bride, a beautiful and accomplished young lady of seventeen summers, wore a neat calleo dress, and a dailty little cap, which gave her quite a coquettish appearance.

Everything being arranged the minister

ec. Everything being arranged the magan to read the solemn ceremony, began to rend the solemn cerenous, when all at once there was a 'natic in the leaves about the door of the church. The little party within looked excitedly at each other, the bride was pale, as if about to faint, and there was a tremble in the voice of the minister, but the excitement soon passed off, for it was caused simply by a passing dog, who took no interest in what was going on within. Finally the ceremony was misshed and Mr. H. M. Herin, formally of Mississippi,

I forgot what the Mexican name for it is, but translated it means tarantula hawk, and it is called that because it has a way of swooping down on the tarantula and disposing of it as easily as a chicken nawk can de up a pullet.

"This wasp is the only thing that big halry spider is afraid of. The tarantula will tackle a rattle snake or a bear without a moment's hesitation, but it turns tail and digs for home if there is a tarantula hawk buzzing anywhere in its vicinity.

"The wasp doesn't eat the tarantula. It simply drops down on it and socks its stinger in the spider, whereupon the spider turns up its toes. The wasp lays a couple of eggs in the fieshy part of the tarantula's big body and then buries its victim. The curious part of it is the spider ian't dead. It is only paralyzed or embalmed, so to speak, with all its vital juices intact. The wasp's eggs hatch out grubs in the course of time, and the grubs go right to work dining on the tarantula's preserved meat.

"When they have acten it all they bore out of preserved meat.

"When they have eaten it all they bore out of the spider's shell, dig their way to the surface and become wasps themselves, and start out for business on their own account.

"This interesting wasp is something like a couple of inches long when it's of age, and has a stinger with close on to an inch, of plunge. This "My face kept on getting cold, and I couldn't make it hurt by pinching it or pricking it with a pin. In the horror of what I supposed was my impending fate, I lost all recollection of the rhen-matic pains that had been turning me almost in-side out only a minute or so before.

"The obserging numbers, and coldness in my

It was all I could do to hobble around with a cane.

"A sympathetic native told me that I would keep on feeling that way for a couple of hours. I did, for nobody would lend fine a pistor. I could have lain down and died with willingness, and moaned and moaned when they told me that the sting of the Mexican wasp never killed anybody.

"The two hours that I kept company with the aftermath of that wasp's plunger were two hours of mortal agony. But the pain went away after that so suddenly that I went to sleep and had delightful dreams. When I awake I felt like a new man. The cheek hadn't swollen a particle during the entire course of the treatment, but it was as sore as nine boils for two days.

"Now, queer as it may seem, I couldn't imagine me that it was because my rheumatism was gone.

There was no more sign of rheumatism about me than there is about a kitten. And there never has been from that day to this. I don't care how had a man has rheumatism, set thin go down and take the Mexican wasp sting treatment, and he'll for-get he ever had it. I know what the Mexican wasp can do in rheumatism, and so I am willing to back that Mexican spider at big odds sgainsi typhus, and you may tell 'em that I say so."

AND STRAWS WILL BE DRAWN TONIGHT

Augusta, Ga, March 9.—(Special.)—The baby road's name will be changed and the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville will be rechristened the Augusta and Southern. Mr. James N. Jackson returned this morning from New York, where he went to attend a meeting of the bondholders of the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville railroad, who recently purchased the road and are now arranging plans for reorganization. Mr. Jackson says it was decided to change the name of the road from the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville to the Augusta and Southern. The application for a charter for the new road under the new state law will be made at once by Mr. John W. Need, of New York, who has the matter in charge. As soon as the charter is granted another meeting will be held, at which officers will be elected and future plans decided upon.

Will Identify Oscar.

Oscar Johnson, the negro arrested for the double murder of Mr. and Mrs. Tweitmann, at Lincolnville, last Saturday night, now in jail at Charleston, is supposed to be the same Oscar Johnson who killed his sister-in-law, Lucinda Sims, two years ago, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, but went crasy and was transferred to the lunatic asylum in Milledgeville, from which place he escaped two months ago. The description furnished Chief Hood by Chief Martin, of Charleston, tallies to the letter with Oscar who killed Lucinda. Mr. J. J. Hyams, who knows Oscar well, will be in Charleston to morrow and will visit the jail and see if he is the same man.

Edward Boisclair, an old negro, who was sentenced to the penitentiary for four years last October, and who was released from custody upon giving a one-thousand-dollar bond until the case was heard by the supreme court, and who ran away last month, has been captured. He was accidentally caught by Rev. J. W. White, his bondsman. Mr. White was returning from Cleveland's inauguration, and at Lynchburg, Va., heard that Boisclair was in Pocahontas, so he stopped over there, had his man arrested and had him brought back to Augusta this morning.

Death of Tom Nowell. Death of Tom Nowell.

Mr. Tom Nowell is dead. He was well-known in the cotton district, and was esteemed by all. Mr. Nowell was a native of Charleston and was about fifty years of age. He came to Augusta fifteen years ago and went into the cotton business with his brother, Mr. L. C. Nowell. Mr. Nowell had been confined to his bed for a long time with troubles resulting from a stroke of paralysis. He died this morning at S o'clock. His body will be taken to Charleston for interment.

A Salcide Club.

The Evening Herald this afternoon is authority for the following news: "A Salcide Club has been organized in Augusta. This is a fact. The club was organized today and a well known young man about town is president. There will be a regular meeting in a few nights and six members will draw straws to See who shall be the first to go to his long account. The terms of agreement are that the one losing shall, within thirty days, make away with himself in a manner he shall deem most expedient. The club includes two newspaper men and four other well-known young business men. The members are mostly thred of life and creditors and collectors, and are anxious to shuffle off the coils of this mundane existence.

PHI GAMMA'S DAY.

Oxford, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—The college exercises were suspended yesterday in honor of the fifty-fourth anniversary of the Phi Gamma Literary Society. Much interest has been taken to make this an occasion of great enjoyment, and an event of much importance, inspiring new love for the old society and promoting fresh concern for her prosperity.

The ladies of Oxford, who have at heat all the numbered for planting and the content of the conten choicest howers and verily turned it into a bower of bliss.

The anniversarian was Mr. E. Freeman Jones, of Herndon, Ga., one of Emory's brightest young men, of whom Phi Gamma is justly proud. He came to Emory and entered the sub-freshman department from which he has steadily worked up to the senior class, gaining the admiration of all for his superjor endowments, manthe senior class, gaining the admiration of all for his superior endowments, manliness, and devotion to duty. He is recognized as an able debater and a ready speaker. Last spring he was one of the Phi Gamma's representatives in the intersociety debate and his speech on that occasion won distinction for him as a reasoner and profound thinker. His theme today was, "Mammon Worship vs. Hero Worship," and he manifested his ability as an orator in a brilliant and forcible speech.

as an orange in a speech.

Mr. R. E. Bailey made the welcome address and Mr. George A. McDonnell, of the Few society, introduced the orator of the day. The exercises were concluded with a beautiful anniversary poem by Mr. R. E. Lee. The enthusiasm of the boys, the eloquent speeches and the delightful music rendered it an occasion of much pleasure, and one to be long remembered.

TWO MEN FATALLY HURT.

A Quarrel Between Younger Brothers Leads to a Tragedy in Worth.

to a Tragedy in Worth.

Albany, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—At a dance which followed a logrolling near Dole's, in Worth county, last night, Louis Gay, a desperate character and a big, burley fellow, became involved in a dispute with Crawford Boss, a young man much his inferior in physical manhood and junior in years. The dispute finally ended in Gay drawing a revolver and firing three shots at Boss, one of them taking effect in Boss's abdomen. Boss then drew a long barlow knife and with two blows cut Gay half in two.

Both men are thought to be fatally wounded. The difficulty originated in a dispute which had taken place between the younger brothers of the wounded men.

The First Sbot for Georgia.

The First Sbot for Georgia.

Mr. J. T. Bush, of Early county, claims to have fired the first shot on Georgia soil in defense of the southern confederacy. The incident occurred on Whitmarsh island, below. Savannah, and was done in repelling the landing of a crew from a yankee gunboat. Mr. Bush was a gallant soldier and lost a leg in defense of the lost cause. He says he has ample proof to sustain his claim to the honor of firing the first shot on Georgia soil.

Mr. J. G. Stephens, of this city, has just lost a valuable cow from swallowing a safety pin—a sort of paradoxical death. It is supposed the animal swallowed it while drinking slops. The First Shot for Georgia.

Elberton, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Dr. W. A. Montgomery has tendered his resignation as president of the John Gibson institute, at Breman, in this county and Professor Albert W. Mathews, a young man of sterling worth and considerable experience in teaching, has been selected as president of the institute. This school has already enrolled more than 200 pupils and is in a prosperous condition.

Dawson, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)— Mr. John T. Turner, who had been in failing health for several months, is dead.
Mr. A. Collum, who resided near Dawson, died last night from a paralytic stroke

The doctor's friends are confident that he will be assigned to this post. Securities Coming In Securities still continue to be deposited for Central reorganization. In all, about two hundred and forty lots of stock have been received and receipts issued for them. There are 250 receipts in a book. There are 250 receipts in a book. The number of receipts out for bonds, though, is much smaller. For debentures, probably as many certificates have been given as for the stock. Several large blocks have been deposited this week. Considerable Southwestern stock has been deposited, considering the dilatory action of the stockholders of that road.

Unless the citizens of Savannah make some action to retain it, Minnie mission will in all probability be removed from Savannah or done away with altogether. While the board of lady managers who have the mome in charge have heard nothing officially from Mrs. Aminta Green, who keeps the large institution in finances and whose private charitable work the home is, as to what her intentions are, one or two of them have received private the home is, as to what her intentions are, one or two of them have received private letters on the subject and it is generally known that the home is to be abolished or removed, and they are very much exercised over the matter. The reason for this inability of Mrs. Green to longer maintain the home as she has been doing is this: Mrs. Green has been keeping children for the past thirteen years at almost entirely her own expense. She has given children a home and has fed them while the board of managers, consisting of sixteen ladies, have clothed the little ones. She is understood to be still willing to liberally assist any city that will take hold of the institution. This is probably a good chance for Atlanta.

good chance for Atlanta. That Flag Incident. That Flag Incident.

The flag incident continues to be the talk of the town. "The carrying of the Governor's Florse Guard flag cannot be excused in this way," said an officer today. "As to the Hussars not objecting at Washington, what could they do? The flag was carried furled over part of the procession until Pennsylvania avenue was flag was carried furled over part of the procession until Pennsylvania avenue was struck and then it was thrown to the breeze and to their astonishment the Georgia Hussars saw that they were marching under the flag of an Atlanta company. It was too late then to protest or do anything else. There doubtless would have been a protest if the flag had not been furled until Pennsylvania avenue was reached. It was known in Atlanta that we had a state flag. We were informed that we need not carry it, as a state flag would be carried from Atlanta."

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

A Boy Has His Leg Ground to Pieces and

West Point, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Quite a sad accident occurred at McPherson's brickyard. Will Leverett, quite a bright boy of thirteen years of age, got caught in the eoggs of the brick machine and had one of his legs ground into mincement up to his hip. It took some time to extricate him from his most fearful position, where he suffered untold agonies, and with piteous cries called on those around him for help. Messrs. McPherson and Young, with great difficulty, succeeded in releasing him, having had to take the machine to pieces to effect it. Drs. J. W. Griggs, and James A. Beasley responded quickly to the call, but his condition was too serious to perform an operation, and he died about 12 o cick, a reaction having never taken place. He was quite a favorite with taken place. He was quite a favorite with the force at work there, and from all sides he was recognized as a bright and interest-

DISMISSED IN DISGRACE FOR MARRYING.

Captain Wilson, of the Salvation Army at Captain Wilson, of the Salvation Army at Fort Dodge, Loses Her Shoulder Straps.

Fort Dodge, Ia., March 9.—(Special.)—Captain Wilson, of the local branch of the Salvation Army, has been court-martialed and dismissed in disgrace from the army for marrying against the advice of her superior officers. Some time ago Tom Eslinger, who was not an army member, began paying her attentions. In a short time their love became great. Tom joined the army and Captain Wilson promised to marry him. Nearly all the local army members objected to the marriage. Major French and Captain Nelson came up from Des Moines and brought all their influence to bear to prevent the marriage. Finally the young people were married by the Baptist minister.

A Matter of Justice

A correspondent, whose communication e print herewith, understands correctly daim which The Constitution has set ap in behalf of Georgia-namely, that the ust apportionment of offices the state is titled to should be restored so as to lace the people of this state on an equal ooting with the people of other states with respect to appointments,

Our correspondent writes:

Editor Constitution—Every genuine democrat artily endorses the attitude of The Cou ion in demanding that this state be iven its just proportion of the federal pat age. The "spoils" idea does not enter ito this in the slightest degree. It is purely ad aimply a matter of justice, and ha ing to do with the civil service,

I have made a careful examination and find at there are about thirty thousand offices the gift of the administration. This, of does not include positions of menia or, nor those to which each state is en-

Georgia has about two millions of people and are about sixty millions of people in the ited States. Thus Georgia is, in justice. ed to one-thirtieth of the federal pat-This would give Georgia 1,000 offices. until that many Georgians are appointed cations for office from this state. Of lled, it would be rude for this state to inst on more than its fair share.

But we should have 1,000 credit of Georgia. Have we got them?

By all means let Georgia have her apportion This claim has nothing to do with civil vice reform or with parties, or with ticular applicants. We are simply ing in favor of a readjustment on basis that is at the bottom of the

n. er for a generation, with but one rt interval, offices were apportioned to the states according to popula--that is to say, on the basis of conional representation. Since the war, rer, such democratic states as Georhave been shorn of their proper rtion of places, and the party that ched them has employed them to gthen its power in other states.

w. what The Constitution desires to a readjustment of this necessary nt on a fair basis. As ou espondent points out, Georgia would titled, under this readjustment, to at t one thousand offices, not including se which naturally belong to the tate, such as postoffices, etc.

We think this matter is important igh to deserve the consideration of democratic administration. No one ld doubt that Mr. Cleveland is heartily favor of whatever is just and fair, we believe that he will cure the ine which, under republican ratings rulings, works against the great tic state of Georgia.

brity of the federal offices to his state is entitled have been d out among other states, and evil is of sufficient importance to call

There can be no just grounds for comnt because Georgians want office. There is room for several hundred apments, and Georgia's representation the administration should see to it it the state gets justice.

A Friendly Winter.

The winter that has just passed was a d one in many respects on man and cost, but, from all the information we can er. it will prove to be fortunate in sults. The severity of the season nd the recurrence of the cold snaps ve had two results that will be ap ted later on.

The heavy fall of snow in Georgia has ized and fertilized the soil to an nt that the ordinary methods of vation could not accomplish, and the ding freezes refreshed and restored nd that had been "soured" by the ous warm winters. When Providence ts its powerful plows in the soil, the er ought to be happy.

The cold has also kept back vegetation such an extent that a profitable fruit rop is assured to Georgia. This fact a great deal more to our people a it did twenty years ago, and a great sal more, possibly, than the majority of rs imagine. Our fruit interests ve been increasing and extending year year until now they are something us. A bountiful fruit crop in this ins at least a million dollars in kets of those who are engaged in and it may mean much

n so far as we can remem fruit trees to put forth prematurely, so that except in favored sec crop has been cut short. The prospects now are that we shall discover what Georgia can do in the way of fruit raising

It is true, the early truck farms have been set back by the cold weather, but an abundant late crop is as profitable as an early one that has been nipped.

With Providence on our side, good crops and a democratic administration in power, our people have little more to ask for.

Attacking Legislative Integrity.

The Springfield Republican, which stands as the representative of New England "upper thought," makes a strange attack upon the integrity of the legisla tive bodies of the union. It charges that such bodies no longer represent the people; that they are dishonest, and inimates that the time may come when the making of laws will have to be submitted to a vote of the whole people.

The editorial is based upon the race-track legislation in New Jersey After laying the weight of New England displeasure upon the back of the New Jersey legislature, the charge is widened so as to embrace New York, for "exhibi tions of ignorance and venality," and Connecticut, where, possibly, only one member was free from bribery.

It is a notable fact that the charges of corrupt legislation are confined to states which have had the advantages of Nev England "higher law" from their origin and that not one southern legislature i mentioned. The tribute to the legislatures of the southern states is unwitting, but it is all the higher for that. Not only have these legislative bodies retained all the honor and integrity of the olden time but they represent constituencies that could not be reached in the manner complained of in Massachusetts and neigh boring states.

The Pursuit of Office.

The scenes being enacted just now in Washington, in the frantic endeavors to secure government office would be ludicrous, were they not freighted with so many tragedies in private life.

On the outside, there are men who want to abandon lucrative callings for the allurement of representing the United States in some outlandish foreign country where life is really not worth living. The enthusiasm of these budding patriots is refreshing. They are men who, in private life, have been of service to themselves and to their families. They became inter ested in the campaign which led up to the presidential election, and, through some means, became impressed with the idea that they had a pull on the man who has the distribution of patronage for the next four years. After several months of fretting and fuming, they became spectators at the inaugural, and, when the great crowds had melted away, they remained behind to look after their interests, and to prevent the president from naking any such mistake as leaving their names off the official list. Some of them succeed in their aspirations, and start off with their gripsacks in great glee. In the meantime, some sharp fellow at home has been watching all this, and secures the new officeholder's old place. Four years pass by, and the hopeful man of a short time before returns to find that there is no place at home for him, and that he must begin at the bottom to work his way up again.

Even while these men are thus harassing Mr. Cleveland not to forget their services, the other end of the picture is on exhibi tion right in their midst. It requires no stretch of the imagination to fathom the despair with which thousands of the present incumbents in office listen to the talk about the men who are to succeed rour years victims of the enervating influence which unfits an officeholder from being a success in civil life. Yet the ax is suspended over their heads, and they live in constant dread of its falling. Too late they find out that public office is as much a private burden as it is a public trust.

Notwithstanding all this, there are plenty of applicants for the one thousand offices which Georgia will have when she gets her just apportionment.

Mr. Carlisle Speaks. In order to allay the multitude of senseless rumors invented by the stocktobbers in and around Wall street, Secretary Carlisle yesterday authorized the announcement that he would exercise all the power and discretion vested in his office to uphold the credit of the government, and to maintain the parity of gold and silver.

This announcement following the declaration of President Cleveland that he proposes to do all in his power to releem the pledges of the Chicago platform, will be sufficient to set the public mind at rest. We may say, therefore, that the stock-jobbers and money lenders of Wall street have been defeated in their first round with the democratic administration.

That they will give up the fight, we do not believe, but that the people's administration will defeat their efforts there cannot be the slightest doubt. Secretary Carlisle represents, in a peculiar sense the wishes and purposes of the people and, in the conflict between the people and the money power, his attitude will not be a doubtful one. He is a democrat pure and simple. He is honest and coura geous. He has no affiliations with stockobbers and speculators, and, before he has been in office a month, the outsiders who have been practically controlling the treasury department in the interes of their private speculations will find themselves cut adrift, and their occupations gone

It is a bigger thing than the bigges gold reserve, to have an incorruptible and a fearless man at the head of the treasury department in this conjunction when the enemies of the people are engaged in marshaling their forces for a furious onslaught on two-thirds of the debt-paying money of the country.

The example of Denver, in offering gold to the treasury in return for treasury notes, has been followed by the bankers of Chicago, who have offered $5,000.000 in gold to Mr. Carlisle. This will stime late other bankers to come forward with offers, so that we may say the financial situation has cleared up the moment Mr. Carlisle assumed control.

There are numbers of patriotic banker in the country, and this element perceive that it has nothing whatever to gain by clique wanted to get interest on its gold, but the patriotic bankers in other cities are perfectly willing to exchange their idle gold for non-interest-bearing treasury

We do not mean to say that all the Wall street banks are engaged in the scheme to force an issue of bonds. There are numbers of honest bankers in that center who would scorn to engage in so disreputable a conspiracy. In this matter, Wall street has been divided against itself, but the honest and patriotic ele-ment has never had a fair hearing in the newspapers. It may be fairly said that the emergency has passed over, and the bond conspira tors have been knocked out. They may renew the contest—they may continu to ship gold abroad—but they will reach the limits of their resources after awhile Meantime, the whole country has confi dence in the ability of the Cleveland administration to cope with them.

The Anti-Snappers.

The Washington correspondents report that a large delegation of "anti-snappers, headed by the celebrated E. Ellery Anderson, are at the federal capital. They say they are not after any office, but when a muwump makes this sort of an assertion he reminds us of the boy who wants to surround a mule in a pasture. He doesn't look at the mule nor go towards him, but approaches the animal obliquely. Sometimes he gets the bridle on, but more frequently be has to call the whole neighborhood to his assist Anyhow, E. Ellery Anderson and his nugwump cohorts make a beautiful spectacle. They are, in effect, carrying around an advertising poster on which i set forth, in large black type, the announcement that, but for their efforts, Mr. Cleveland would have been neither nominated nor elected. This is 'a pretty big chunk of gall to fling in the face of events. According to this claim, Mr. Cleveland was nothing nor nobody, and all his popularity and influence grew out of the fact that he was taken up and endorsed by the anti-snappers, with E. Ellery Anderson at their head.

We do not know how Mr. Cleveland will relish this attempt to belittle his tremendous personal popularity and to bring into contempt the impression he has made on the people. We have no doubt, however, that he rates them all at their true value. The truth of the matter is, that, if the campaign had been left to these weakminded meddlers, Mr. Cleveland would have been defeated. He would have had arrayed against him not only New York, but other states necessary to his nomination. As Mr. R. B. Roosevelt puts it, this element did more than anything else to hurt Mr. Cleveland's chances, and it required all of Mr. Whitney's phenomenal adroitness as a fool-killer to prevent the anti-snappers from defeating Mr. Cleve land's nomination.

Taine's Philosophy.

The death of M. Taine, the celebrated French author, is furnishing food for discussion among those who are anxious that the world should know that they have studied something French. The literary man who has a leaning for a certain class of French authors is on a par with the American dude who is moved to the adoption of styles "because they are so English, you know."

Taine's influence upon his readers was pernicious. His teachings led to the belief that man was a creature of surroundings. He scouted the redeeming influences of the gospel, ascribing whatever of improvement there was in the human race to purely natural influences. A man's wickedness was as much his nature as his goodness. His grade in the human scale was simply the result of inheritance which began at the anthropological point and developed to the highest type of manhood. Man at his best, therefore was nothing better than a splendid horse whose history could be read through the list of his sires.

The man, whether sage or churl, who throws aside the only influence out of which has grown the highest type of human development, has lived to no good purpose. It is not a mere coincidence that these nations which are Christian are at the same time the highest in natural developments. It may suit the views of certain self-satisfied naturalists to claim that man is only a magnificent beast, but the fact cannot be removed that his supremacy is in proportion to his direct dependence upon God.

E. Ellery Anderson will be very angry if Mr. Cleveland doesn't turn over the government to the management of the anti-

Is Fireproofing Possible.
Scarcely a week goes by, says a writer in the Engineering Magazine, that one or another of the journals devoted to architecture does not contain some article by experience and able writers bearing upon the fire-proo ng of buildings and without doubt, there could be formulated from these articles a system of principles that would be thoroughly eff clent to meet the requirements. In the at-tempt to discover right principles, the ad-vice and assistance of the now noted fire-proofing companies should not be neglected. The demand was no sooner created for a science of fire-proofing than it was immediately met by the formation of companies for the very purpose of supplying it. The new industry, with experience as its teacher, has developed year by year, until at the present moment there is not a first-class architect or engineer in the country who will deny that an absolute fireproof building can be built, and at a reasonable cost. Yet fires of a most most disastrous character are constantly oc-curing in buildings advertised by their owners as fireproof. It is not surprising, therefore that a large element, probably a vast ma-jority of the entire community doubt the pos-sibility of constructing an absolute fireproof building. It is an incontrovertable fact that every fire which has taken proof" building has been d criminate use of combustible ma construction; moreover, it may be demonstra-ted that fireproof material could have been substituted for the material burned at a cost men of the state.

The evidence of the bystanders as to the mate's words was as follows: "Look here, stranger, if you don't tote your plunder off that gangplank right smart, I'll spill you in the drink."

Major Alexander encountered all the trials and difficulties entailed by the losses and poverty of the south after the war. There was a poor field for lawyers in the country towns at that time, and after a few years, he moved to Augusta, going into business there with Hon. James T. Gardiner, who was at that time at the head of the cotton business of the city. The firm of Shivers & Alexander, having Mr. Gardiner, as its financial head, went into the cotton and fertilizer business combined. And at the end of one year, having been highly prosperous, it was merged into the well known Dickson Fertilizer Company, organized and capitalized to conduct the extensive business that Shivers & Alexander had founded. Mr. Garliner was president and Mr. Alexander manager of that company during five years of large and successful business and the company was wound up. Mr. Alexander having then $4,000 of his own means induced to buy out the long established drug business of Plumb & Leitner which was just then in a failing condition. Mr. Alexander has established a comfortable living and maintains a happy home from this business. WORK HAS NOT STOPPED. The Contractors Are Busy on the South bound Extension.

The report that work has been stopped on the line between Savannah and Jacksonville is denied by the chief engineer, Major W. F. Green. According to the report, Mr. H. B. Plant was negotiating for the purchase of the Florida Central and Peninsula Company and if he were to buy it he would not build the extension between Savannah and Jacksonville for he has the Savannah, Florida and Western connecting those two cities. Such a purconnecting those two cities. Such a purconnecting those two cities. Such a purchase would be perfectly natural for him but he announced a long time ago that he would not buy the Florida Central and Peninsula road at the figures asked. He thought that it would be cheaper for him to have his line parralleled than to pay a high price for the opposition line. The chief engineer states that work is going on just the same and that no order has been received to stop.

Captain Sage, who built the Seaboard's belt line here, has the contract to build the new line and he has 1,100 men at work and wants to get more but the publication of the report that the Florida Central and Peninsula had been sold or was about to Peninsula had been sold or was about to be sold, kept sub-contractors away. Thirty-one miles of the new line have been completed and are ready for the iron. The contractors have started work on the found

The Central of Georgia is waiting for this new line to be completed so that it can work the Florida business with it and get a long haul. The Central will either handle the Florida business on the Nancy Hanks or make its night train a very fast one. Either way the connection at Savan-nah will be very close and the run from Adanta to Florida will be shortened considerably.

"Grateful acknowledgements are also due to the ministers of the city for their sympathy and help; and especially to those friends who sacrificed time and labor in going from store to store and from house to house soliciting relief for those hapless people in Greenville.

"The suggestion has come from many of the prominent ministers of the city that on the coming Sabbath all the churches take collections to help us rebuild our college, our churches and other public institutions. Should this be done it will doubly enhance our sense of obligation to the noble people of Atlants.

Hon. W. H. White, mayor of this city, called a meeting of the citizens to take steps for the relief of the cyclone sufferers of Chambers county, Alabama, and Troup and Meriwether counties, Georgia. A committee composed of Captain R. A. S. Freeman, Dr. J. P. Miller and Dr. G. T. Pattillo was appointed to secure subscriptions of money and supplies. Also a committee to make distribution of supplies composed of J. W. Burdett, W. D. Woodward and T. L. Norman.

The committee has collected $250 for the cyclone sufferers. Of the above amount $75 was sent to Greenville, Ga., and the remainder was divided between cyclone sufferers of Chambers county, Alabama, and Troup county, Georgia. The ladies of our city have collected one wagon load of clothing and bed clothes and sent to the sufferers of the above counties and are still at work collecting more, which will be sent tomorrow or next day to Greenville, Ga. Columbus, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—The whole amount in money up to tonight raised for the cyclone sufferers at Greenville and Molena is $1,270.85. Two-thirds goes to Greenville, the rest to Molena; about $300 worth of clothing also has been raised.

The Old Quarrel About Closing Up a Street in North Atlanta Is Now Adjusted.

North Atlants Is Now Adjusted.

The old quarrel that has been in the courts for several years in regard to the closing of an old road in the northern portion of the city, where it makes a deviation from the street, will now be allowed to rest in peace.

All of the parties to the feud have now agreed to bury the hatchet, and to shake hands over the bloody chasm.

For the last seven years, in one shape or another, the matter has been before the courts. It was a legacy that each term entilled upon the other, and that offered for a long time no prospect of a settlement. Within the last few months it has bobbed up before the board of county commissioners, and, like the ghost of Banquo, it has persevered in keeping up.

Testerday morning there was a special meeting of the board of county commissioners. It was called for the special purpose of settling this matter.

Mr. J. F. Burke, who wanted the street to stay open, was represented by Hillyer & Lee. Mr. Amorous, who wanted the street closed, was represented by Mr. A. C. King. Each side threatened to sue the county in the event of a certain alternative, and it looked for a while as if the county was in hot water.

Finally it was decided to close up the street at the south end and allow it to empty itself into a little street that runs into it at right angles near the south end, and that runs by the residence of Captain Burke. The county comes into possession of a small piece of land by closing the street, and will open it up in such a way as to settle the matter to the satisfaction of all parties by making a convenient access to the property that would otherwise be damaged by the closing of the street.

For rheumatism and neuralgia you cannot get a better remedy than Salvation Oh. The old quarrel that has been in the courts

Not a Republican Called on the Ex-Postmaster General.

WANAMAKER'S

The Ex-Cabinet Member Promenaded the Union Depot Last Night-He Is Glad He Lost Money in Reading.

With leisurely tread, the Hon. John With leisurely tread, the Hon. John Wanamaker, ex-postmaster general of the United States, paced up and down the platform of the union depot last night. His smooth shaven face, stockily built figure, keen eyes, firm stride and thorough business air, denoted the man of affairs. His hair has turned a little grayer than it was two years are when he was here a visit two years ago when he was here, a visit which he referred to with pleasant recol-lections and remarked that he had enjoyed very much. "Atlanta was so hospitable to us and made us feel that we were among friends," he observed.

Mr. Wanamaker was on a trip to Mexico and to the Pacific slope. He was ac-companied by his wife and family, and a-few friends. They were traveling in a pri-vate car which came down on the second section of the Richmond and Danville ves-tibule. While waiting for the New Orleans train to be made up here, the gentlemen got out to stretch their legs and the ladies to study the beauties of the passenger shed.

It was another case of great Caesar dead and turned to clay-not a solitary and for and turned to clay—not a solitary and forlorn official or employe from the Atlanta postoffice was at the depot to welcome or condole, as the case might be, with their late chief. And two months ago every single one of them would have been on hånd. Mr. Wanamaker seemed to notice the conspicuous absence of his recent employes but he did not say much about it.

Pacing up and down the platform, he chatted freely with a Constitution reporter who Pacing up and down the platform, he chatted freely with a Constitution reporter who needlessly incited the ex-postmaster general to talk at a furious rate, imagining that a delegation from the postoffice would appear every moment with a brass band and a carriage to carry the distinguished visitor off on a hurried drive to the Equitable, the Forsyth street bridge, the asphalt payment on Peachtree and other near by objects of interest. But it was like the burial of Sir John Moore—not a drum was heard nor a funeral note, and the reporter had an uninterrupted and entertaining talk.

had an uninterrupted and entertaining talk.

"I have not had a vacation for five years and concluded to take advantage of this opportunity, being out of a job for a little while as it were," said Mr. Wanamaker.

He began making arrangements for this tour before he laid down the administration of the postal department. These arrangements, by the way, are very complete and the trip will certainly be an enjoyable one.

rangements, by the way, are very complete and the trip will certainly be an enjoyable one.

Speaking of the four years as a cabinet member, Mr. Wanamaker remarked that he had enjoyed the term. He thought that he had given a good, business administration and had perfected the department. "I would have done much more if congress had permitted it. I wanted to establish a dead letter toffice on the Pacific coast and place as assistant postmaster general there. That would save the transmission of everything from that side of the continent to Washington and would facilitate the affairs of that branch of the government. When I went into the cabinet, I found some things, which as a business man, I thought could be improved. The large cities were getting the most attention and superior service was confined to them. It seemed to me that the growing cities of the south and west deserved attention as well as Philadelphia and New York. You know that the south's postal service was improved."

In an indirect way Mr. Wanamaker explained the poor postal service which the country had during the four years immediately preceding his term, by intimating that too much was sacrificed for economy. "As a business man, I took the position that an investment of money would pay. I followed my judgment as far as congress would allow and the revenue of the postal department shows a greater increase for my four years than under any previous administration. Money spent on the postal service will bring a return just as surely as though invested in some commercial business and the last four years will prove it."

It was with just pride that the ex-post-master general said: "I handled $217.000.

It was with just pride that the ex-post-master general said: "I handled $217,000,- single loss to the government or a defaication that was not made good."

His reported heavy losses recently in Reading rialroad stock came up through some ensual remark and Mr. Wanamaker stated that the reports were exaggerated.

"I was a heavy holder of Reading stock at one time and I am glad to say that I did lose some money when the market broke about the 17th of last month. I do not say that I am glad because of any pleasure it gives me to lose money as an abstract proposition, but in this case others lost and some of them bought the stock because I had done so. If I had dropped out before the smash came they might think that I was on the inside and had worked a scheme. I am not a speculator. The way I came to go in Reading was this: Philadelpha had but one trunk line, the Pennsylvinia Central. It is a fine system, but, of course, the business men wanted another. I bought a large interest in the Philadelphia and Reading and took an active intérest in helping the Baltimore and Ohio get a terminal in Philadelphia. I think that I was able to render some valuable assistance. Well, a few years passed. I was away from Philadelphia a great deal and did not watch the Reading's affairs very closely. Some time ago I had a sort of presentment that things were not going in the proper way with Reading. Nobody gave me a tip or warned me. Indeed, there were some persons I would have counted on to post me on what was going on, but they did not. Luckily the presentment, which was business instinct I suppose, led me to sell out a large part of my Reading stock and when the drop came I was not caught so badly as It might have been. The investment was a loss, but I am glad to say less than was reported.

Mr. Wanamaker's tone had a significant emphasis when he spoke of the friends on whom he would have relied to warn him of coming danger. No allusion more definite than the words quoted was made to them, but he probably meant President McLeod, of the Reading, stoke of the friends on whom he would have relied to warn him of comin be happy without something to do.

He is quite wealthy and can get alor without struggling. He has been a bur man all his life and says that he would no he have without something to do.

A convenient itinerary of the tour has been printed in pamphlet form and a glance over it discloses the fact that the party will not travel on Sunday, but will always rest somewhere and will go to church. In Mexico the party will visit the cathedrals on Sundays.

Sundays.

Mr. Wanamaker looks to be in excellent health and vigorous. He was very chatty and conversational and his former employes do not know what they missed by neglecting to call on him. He did not intimate that he supposed they were timid lest the democrats should notice their presence and he may not even have thought it.

That pleasing spectacle "Zozo" the Magic Queen, will be the attraction at the opera house Monday next at matinee and night. Few plays have had so long and uninterrupted a run as "Zozo" this being its seventh consecutive season. New faces, new features, new songs, new dances, new music—in fact the play has been givn so theroigh an overhauling that nothing is left except the outline and beautiful pattern for scenic effects, which cannot be improved upon. The scenes in fairyland will be complete as far as stage allusion can go, and no children will have an opportunity of paying a visit to that mysterious country. Aside from a thoroughly organized and complete dramatic company, a corps of clowns, acrobats dancers, machinists, special artists and pretty faces, will form part of the spectacle. This will be the only engagement of "Zoso" this season, and more than likely the farewell tour of the play.

An Old Man Convicted in the City Court Yesterday.

HE IS WORTH A LOT OF MONEY.

Mr. T. W. Bidgood Tried and Sentences for Larceny from the House-He Will Move for a New Trial.

One of the saddest pictures ever witnessed in a court of justice was the one presented yesterday in the trial of Mr. T. W. Bidgood of this city.

It occurred before his honor, Judge Westmoreland, in the criminal branch of the city

The defendant was sixty years of age, and his locks were silvered over by the frost of years. His brow was furrowed, and there was a wan expression about his face that fully confirmed the statement as to the number of mile posts he had seen.

He was indicted on the charge of larceny He was indicted on the charge of larceny from the house, a legal expression, which, traislated into every fay English, means simple theft. The saddest part of it all was that for many years, and in fact until the very day when the crime was alleged to have been committed, he had borne an honest name and was esteemed for his high character by the whole community.

No one ever thought that Mr. Bidgood was not a high-toned, worthy gentleman, and if any one had stated that he was guilty of one-half the crime that was brought

Story of the Trial.

Several weeks ago Mr. Bidgood was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mr. W. M. Middlebrooks, charging him with larceny from the house.

The property of Mr. Bidgood abuts the property of Mr. Middlebrooks, and next to the house in which the former lives is a large warehouse which is used by the latter for the purpose of storing away grain and other produce.

It was charged by Mr. Middlebrooks and was brought out in the evidence yesterday, that Mr. Bidgood had taken away a lot of oats. He had used a pair of trucks for the purpose, and when the discovery was made, it was found that he had $45 worth of oats in his possession.

Mr. Bidgood denied his guilt and claimed that while the oats were discovered on his

Mr. Bidgood denied his guilt and claimed that while the oats were discovered on his place that he was not responsible for their possession. He did not steal them and some one else was the guilty party.

The evidence was all submitted to the jury and after a careful and thorough investigation, is was found by the jury that Mr. Bidgood was guilty.

The judgo sentenced him on hearing the result of the trial and gave him his preference between six months in the chaingang or the payment of $350.

His attorney stated that he would immediately move for a new trial.

He Is Worth Money.

Mr. Bidgood is a man of property and is reputed to be worth as much as $15,000. This is one of the inconsistencies of the charge, that a man who was lifted above charge, that a man who was lifted above reasonable want by the means to gratify his wishes, should condescend to commit an act that was calculated to blight his good name, when there was no reason in the world for committing such a theft.

The appeal will be entered without delay and the matter win go before the supreme court. In the meantime the defendant is out on bond.

Twenty-Five Hours Retween New York and Raleigh, N. C., March 9.-(Special.)-Today General Superintendent Myers and Division Superintendents John H. Winder, J. W. Whisnant, William Moncure and William Smith and Master Mechanics Maglenn, Holding, Walker and Cothrane, of the Seaboard Air Line, met here. Many matters of interest partials to the line. matters of interest pertaining to the line were discussed, particularly a fast vestibule train between New York and Atlanta. It is arranged that this shall be put on by June 1st, at the latest. It will be very fast. It is decided that the schedule time between Raleigh and Atlanta is to be twelve hours and between Raleigh and New York, thirteen hours. The train will make only twelve stops between New York and Atlanta, five of these being on the Georgia, Carolina and Northern division. The train will be very handsome in the interior and exterior designs and finish. The name of the train has not been chosen as yet. All this information is specially given your correspondent by Division Superintendent John H. Winder.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 3.—For the enlightenment of the incredulous person who has always sniffed scornfully at the idea that the mammoth elephant, the lordly lion and the fearless tiger would tremble and run at the sight of a little mouse a series of experiments were made by R. F. Hamilton in the winter quarters of the Barnum & Bailey circus in Bridgeport, Conn. These experiments proved that the old story was correct in every particular.

Of the fwelve elephants, four lions, five leopards and five tigers to which a mouse was thrown, only the veteran trick elephant, Don, had the courage to face the tiny intruder. The other animals, including the royal Bengal tiger, Grover, which is the most ferocious beast in the collection, screamed or trumpeted in terror and got as far away as possible from the mouse.

After the supply of mice had been exhausted a lot of small rats were used and they furnished a still more striking illustration of the fear inspired by the rodent.

It is only fair to say that the mice felt as much terror as did the large animals, but there was no fear shown by the rats. They showed fight at once and sprang at the beasts with which they were caged. One of them gave Jenny, the lioness, such a nip on the nose that her majesty screamed as loudly as a woman would under the same circumstances.

Don, the old trick elephant, made short circumstances.

Don, the old trick elephant, made short work of his two mice. He simply stepped on them. The antics of the other elephants were ludicrous. They danced around like the shoppers and lifted their huge.

skirts.
Trainer Conklin became nervous after a Trainer Conklin became nervous after a few minutes and put the investigators out of the elephant house. The big animals could be heard trumpeting for more than an hour afterward. The lions and tigers and leopards quieted down much more quickly and after they had been fed they only lay and winked at the mice that were thrown at them.

Two little pumas from California in one end of the lion house had been left out of the lio American beasts.

It had been planned to try the effect of music on the serves of the animals and a frightened little Italian with a violin had been provided for that purpose. His fingers trembled so folently when he was placed before the tiger's cage that "Ta-ra-boomde-ay" sounded like a lullaby and the animals went to sleep.

MISTAKEN FOR A REVENUE SPY.

An Evangelist Is Roughly Treated in Birmingham. Ala., March 9.—(Special.)— Rev. D. A. Stratton, an evangelist from Elmott, Tex., reports a rough experience in Winston county. After closing a meeting at Rassellville, Franklin county, he set out across Winston county for Guin, his next stand.
He stopped all night with a farmer pamed
William Burns, but the moonshiners had seen him and mistaking him for a revenue spy, were on his trail. At the dead of night they went to the house, dragged him out and took him into the woods. They robbed him of everything he had, kicked him and cuffed him and maltreated him in every way, and finally put a rope around his neck. Just as he began to pray they turned him loose, with the injunction to go and tell all other revenue sples what he had found out in Winston county.

And the Result Is a Bad Railroad Wreck in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, March 9.—A passenger train on the Central division of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad from Oxford, Pa., which was due here at 9:20 o'clock this morning, collided with a freight train on the Wilmington, and Northern railroad at Chadsford Junction about 8:50 o'clock. Engineer Phillipa, of the passenger train, was tilled, and Conductor William Cummins. of the same train, was badly injured. Five freight cars were totally wrecked. The passenger train was not scheduled to stop at Chadsford, but when she neared that point the freight was across the tracks. The engineer of the passenger train, it is claimed, was given a red signal and the order to flag was against him. The train dashed on and struck the freight about the middle, crushing through it. Then the engine toppled and went over the bank into a meadow, Phillips being killed by the fall. The fireman jumped and escaped. The baggage car was thrown from the track, but did not fall over. There were but a few passengers in the coach and none of them were hurt.

Death of Mrs. Night.

Conyers, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Mrs. Night, wife of Mr. S. D. Night, died last light at 8:30 o'clock. She had been sick only short while. Mr. Night is, and has been a short while. Mr. Night is, and has been for a long number of years, an elder in the Conyers Presbyterian church, and his devoted wife had been a member and worker in the church for about forty years. She was a noble, devoted Christian woman. The funeral will be conducted tomorrow morning by Dr. Henry Quigg.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS AND FORECAST.

As was anticipated in yesterday's edition unsettled weather has prevailed in the north Atlantic states. The heaviest rainfall re-Attantic states. The neaviest rainfail reported during yesterday was at New York city, where about an inch and a quarter was recorded, and rain was still falling at 7 o'clock last night, though the storm center had already moved to the east of that city. The weather was fair, generally, in all other sections of the country except in Florida and the upper Mississippi valley where their precipitations were reported.

Temperatures fell a little yesterday in St.

Louis, St. Paul and Cincinnati, and the inter-Louis, St. Paul and Cincinnati, and the inter-lying country, but in all other sections temis persures were either as high or higher than on the day previous. Temperatures now prevailing throughout the whole country are from 19 to 20 degrees higher than what is seasonable for this time in March.

In Atlanta yesterday the temperature ran up to 74 degrees, warmer than some days in July. All through the south the weather was as unseasonably warm except near the guif coast. In the interior of Florida and Texas the warmest weather prevailed, maximum representatives of 80 degrees and over being Today's indications point towards its being about as warm as yesterday in nearly the whole country. Little precipitation is expected, though a storm is fust appearing in the far northwest, which may possibly cause showers in the Mississippi valley by tonight. For Georgia today—Fair, continued warm...

on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, March 9.—There was further diminution in the volume of business at the stock exchange today. Duliness is attributed almost entirely to uncertainty in regard to a probable action of Secretary of the Treasnry Carlisle with reference to the finances of the povernment. While money was ensier and there is little likelihood of gold exports by Saturday's steamers, operators do not feel inclined to go ahead until they obtain a clearer dea of gold ard silver questions. Definite information from Washington is awaited with no little anxiety. Only important fluctuations of the day, outside of New England were the industrial group which were heavy in cosequence of liquidation. There were a number of stop orders in these stocks, execution of which accelerated a downward movement. American bolacco declined 71-4 to 93; national lead, preferred, 6 to 90; common, 31-4 to 35; American Sugar 3 to 118-1-2, and others 1-2 to 1-4 per cent. New England after selling down about a point to 24-3-4 rose to 35-9 and closed at 26. Reading touched 22-3-8, lowest price yet but afterward recovered 1 per cent. The remainder of the list ruled on a lower range in early trading, but subsequently improved mong low priced stocks Louisville, New Albany and Chicago fell to 21, and later rose to 4. There was some selling of lead during the selly on reports that payments of dividends and chicago fell to 21, and later rose to 5-9 to 100; unisted $1,000. Treasury balances, con $72,724,000; currency, $23,-87,000; money on call easier, ranging from $632 to 150 per cent.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

By Southern Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 9-There was no wide sweep of quotations in the cotton narrest today by any means..

Prices, in fact, moved within very narrow limits. As soon as the gong sounded prices moved up a little in response to a rise in Liverpool, but they came down later on when Liverpool became weaker, and the upshot of the whole matter is that the market stands tonight almost in the same position as it stood last night. The generality of the trade are disposed to keep their transactions within moderate limits in view of the uncertainty in regard to the duration of the English strike and the untrustworthy cable advices in regard to the prospects for its settlement. At various times for many weeks past cable dispatches have asserted that the strike would end "shorthy," if not on a particular date, some of these cables even naming the day on which this vexations trouble would end. Cotton merchants and brokers are skeptical now, and want reliable and official information about the matter or none. In the maantime transactions in futures are likely to be rather light. Prices advanced 163 boints, elosing quiet and steady in Liverpool fituies advanced 25-63 points, but lost this, closing quiet and steady with spot sales of 8,000 bales. the case will then be tried on the issue of guilt.

Then an infinite number of "ifs" assert themselves. If the verdict of the jury is "guilty," the case will be appealed to the spureme court. If the supreme court affirms the decision of the lower court, the execution of the sentence will be ordered. If the lower court is not sustained another trial will be granted and the proceedings will start over again de novo.

Again, in the event the defendant is found guilty, and that finding is sustained by the supreme court, it will then be in order, as in the Ozburn case, to have another trial before the ordinary on the issue as to whether or not she is then hasne. The law provides that no insane person shall suffer the penal consequences of their acts, if they become insane after conviction.

So, after conviction there may still be another trial on the issue of insanity, after the regular trial in the superior court.

If a jury in the superior court fails to find her insane there is no telling where the matter will end.

Judge Calhonn is sustained in this opinion by a large number of the bar.

MISS FORGE'S DEADLY PISTOL

The mystery of the purchase of Miss Force's pistol was yesterday morning cleared away by Detective Crim.

Day before yesterday Chief Connolly detailed Detective Crim to find out where the pistol was bought, and after going to nearly every hardware store in the city and making inquiries at all of them, he learned from Mr. Paul Carey, a clerk for the Lowry Harware Company, that he had sold a pistol to a strange

Later in the day Mr. Carey was called be lieved Miss Force to be the woman to whom came into the store, and after looking at the pistol, requested him to show her how it worked. She was very cool about the matter and showed no evidence of her deadly purpose by her movements or manner.

DRPRICE'S

BIG REWARD FOR THE INCENDIARY.

Burning of the Atlanta Fertilizer and Glu Mystery.

The destruction by fire on last Monday night of the plant of the Atlanta Fertilizer and Glue Company promises to furnish a lively sensation if the investigation now in progress develops the facts, which the pro-prietors of the destroyed plant and the city detectives strongly believe are behind the diary act there seems to be no doubt and that it was an unusual incendiary seems equally ertain. What remains to be done is to cient to convict. This done a sensation of a rare kind is promised.

To begin with Schoen Bros. have offered reward of $150 for the capture of the incendiary and have taken every step pos-sible to have him caught. Two days ago they called on the police department for assistance and Detectives Bedford and Green were detailed to investigate the affair.

So far the detectives have made but little progress, but they hope to unearth the sensation before they drop the case.
The Atlanta Fertilizer and Glue Company's plant, which was destroyed by fire early on the morning of the 6th instant, is located two and a half miles west of the city. The plant is situated in the near vicinity of the city dumping grounds and is on Proctor's creek. The plant is quite valuable and had just begun to do a large business.

People who lived in the vicinity of the plant and people who owned property near it were strongly opposed to its location there when the factory was first put up and after it was erected their opposition became stronger than ever.

The nature of the material used by the factory in making the material used by the stronger than ever.

The nature of the material used by the factory in making the goods it turned out made it decidedly objectionable and the property owners and residents round about declared that it was a constant hindrance to the progress of that part of the city and acted to prevent its prosperity and growth. Its presence added to that of the dumping grounds made the locality doubly objectionable and people out there declared that they could not sell their real estate on account of it. Of the two the factory was the most objectionable.

The opposition to the factory grew so strong that bitterness ensued. People cried out angrily against its presence and said that it should be destroyed. It not only threw a damper over property values in the neighborhood, but made life hardly worth living. But, of course, Schoen Bros. could not listen to the protests of citizens and continued their business as quietly as they were allowed to do.

Last Tuesday morning when they went out to the factory they found it burned down. It is far beyond the city limits and is a locality that is altogether without fire protection. It had been set on fire during the night and with no one to extinguish the flames, had been consumed.

Everything pointed to an incendiary origin. The proprietors made all the investigation they could, but were unable to discover anything definite. The only result of their investigation was several theories and they decided to turn the case over of their investigation was several theories and they decided to turn the case over to the city detectives, which they did with the results etected.

to the city detectives, which they did with the results stated.

The Messrs. Shoen made Detectives Bedford and Green acquainted with their suspicions. They were sure that the fire was started by some one of the many residents or property owners in the vicinity, who have been so uncompromisingly opposed to the factory since it was built. They, perhaps, have some idea as to who the particular persons are who started the blaze, but they refuse to say anything about their opinion in regard to the matter.

Detectives Bedford and Green are hard at work on the case. at work on the case.

IN ONE MORE WEEK

Another week and the police department will be doing business at the new stand on Decatur street. Preparations for removal have actively begun and next week will see the old head-quarters left deserted. The removal will probably be effected by the 15th instant. Yesterday afternoon Captain J. W. English, chairman of the police board, Chief Connolly, Chief of Detectives Wright, and Councilmen Stockdell and Dimmock, of the building and grounds committee of the city council, went through the new headquarters and made a final inspection of it. They spent the entire afternoon going over the building, and when they left they were smiling happily. Each one of them express-ed himself as being highly pleased with the ouilding.

The building is already completed and has been for some time, but a few finishing touches have occupied the workmen for several days past. It will take two or three days yet to complete the sewer which is

Today the work of grading and belgian blocking the wagon ways and rear yard will be begun. This work will occupy a week possibly, but will not interfere with the removal, as it is not necessary that it be com-pleted before the building is moved into. The council has already appropriated the money for this work and it will be done to money for this work and it will be done to the queen's taste.

The work of furnishing the new head-quarters will be begun immediately. The furnishings will all be new. New carpets of the latest and finest pattern will be laid, new desks will be placed in the offices, new chairs will be supplied, everything will be new, in keeping with the new surroundings. Chief Connolly has, with excellent taste, selected the furnishings for the new building and that is a sure guarantee that they

Chief Connolly has, with excellent taste, selected the furnishings for the new building, and that is a sure guarantee that they will be of the finest and best.

Recorder Calhoun has already moved into his office, which adjoins the new recorder's courtroom, and it is fitted up in magnificent style. His new courtroom is Judge Andy's especial pride. It is the finest in the city, and is imposing and capacious.

Chief Connolly's office on the second floor will be nicely furnished. The furniture which now suffices for his office will be discarded and new furniture selected. The station house keeper's office on the ground floor will be arranged on a metropolitan plan, and will be railed in, secure from the intrusion of loung its. The present loose style of allowing people to hang around the office will be abolished, it is said.

The old headquarters has only been rented until the 15th instant, and it is hoped that it will be vacated by that time. The removal will not be later than the 17th.

The officers are not anxious to move, even though they will be located in more pretentious and commodious quarters. They are attached as the old place, and the sentimental ones defined the idea of leaving. Especially is this true of Chief Connolly. For eighteen rears has he reported for duty at the old headquarters and he feels a pang of regret at leaving.

THE PIEDMONT CLUB.

BUT ONE TICKET IN THE FIELD.

Mr. Humphreys Castleman Befused Re Election Unconditionally – Two of the Old Directors Withdraw Also.

The meeting of the Piedmont Driving Club opened yesterday afternoon with a war cloud upon the horizon, but all discord was smoothed over and it ended in a love-there were fully fifty members present, at least twice as many as attended the first annual meeting. The adjournment of the regular annual meeting, which occurred Monday, was caused by a statement of Mr. Lack Snelding in present to control the statement of Mr. Jack Spalding in regard to certain expenditures that involved something like $1,000. Mr. Spalding did not question the correctness of the account, or that it was expended not only in the best faith and to the advantage of the club, but that it was spent without regard to a certain by-law in the constitution of the club.

It appears that at the time that the m ey was expended there was no money in the treasury, but the president took it upon him-self, in ignorance of any law in the constitution of the club that would operate against such a step. According to dr. Spaiding, and his statement is not questioned, as it is merely a matter of club legality, three-fourths of the stockholders should have given their sanction to the transaction.

At the time of the regular annual meeting there was only one ticket in the field, and that provided for the re-election of the same officers, and all but two of the old board of directors, two retiring.

Such were the appearances until Wednesday when a new ticket, much to the surprise of Mr. Castleman's friends, and the friends of the other gentlemen, was put into the field.

the field.

The new ticket was headed by Captain R. J. Lowry, but contained the names of Messrs. John Grant, J. R. McKeldin and John Ryan, all of whom were upon the ticket headed by Mr. Humphreys Castleman. The new ticket made things look as though there would be a split in the club, as the friends of Mr. Castleman were enthusiastic for him, and were determined to elect him at any cost. In fact, matters began to take on a squally appearance. A number of Mr. Castleman's friends expressed the opinion that the $1,000 business explained, the new ticket would be withdrawn, and harmony would prevail. Others were less sanguine and attended the meeting expecting to witness a serious contention.

sanguine and attended the meeting expecting to witness a serious contention.

But all were agreeably disappointed.

The reports of the president and secretary were read and adopted unanimously. Before any nominations could be made Mr. Castleman announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election, and would refuse under any circumstances to accept, even though it should be the club's pleasure to elect him. Mr. English withdrew also and his example was followed by Mr. R. F. Maddox.

This left only one ticket in the field which was elected as follows:

President, R. J. Lowry; vice president, John W. Grant.

Directors, A. E. Thornton, Henry Inman, Grant Wilkins, J. R. McKeldin and John F. Ryan. The polls were kept open from 4:39 o'clock until 5:30 o'clock.

The chairman of the meeting was Mr. G. W. Parrott, who presided in a fair and capable manner.

With a corps of efficient officers, and

W. Farrett, who presents it is a pable manner.

With a corps of efficient officers and springtime so near the club will begin to increase its membership and take on a genuine boom. The advantages of a membership in the Piedmont Driving Club are many, and must be enjoyed to be appreciated.

be augmented rapidly, and with none but excellent people.

The new president, Captain Robert J. Lowry, is too well known to need the least word in his favor. His coach-and-four are the pride of the city, and he handles them as only himself can.

The vice president, too, is hardly less better known, and favorably. He is a young man, but is prominent in the business circles of the city.

So with the members of the board of directors—a splendid set of men.

To cleanse the system in a gentle and truly beneficial manner, when the spring time comes, use the true and perfect remedy, Syrup of Figs. One bottle will answer for all the family and costs only 50 cents; the large size $1. Try it and be pleased. Manufactured by the California

"AMONG THE OZARKS."

The land of big red apples is the title of an attractive and highly interesting book recently issued. It is handsomely illustrated with views of south Missouri scenery, including the famous Olden fruit farm of 3,000 acres in Howell county. It pertains entirely to fruit-raising in that great fruit belt of America, the southern slope of the Ozarks, and will prove of great value, not only to fruit growers, but to every farmer and home-seeker in other states looking for a farm and a home.

There is a great margin between the stock of Piece Goods and the exhibition. For one beautiful novelty that is seen there are scores upon the counters unseen. Another difficulty confronts us-the standard we have set for our own displays. It is hard to compare them with them-selves.
